Inside Your Congress

V-J Day

—by—

SAMUEL H. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

At the first anniversary of war's end, it rests one's eyes to take a sneak at Japan. Compared to the festered chaos called Europe—and the fish-wife bickering called European "reconstruction"—the job we have done in Japan is one of which we need not be ashamed.

This is all the more remarkable when we compare the age-long pattern of Emperor worship in Japan with the thought of European peoples who have had some brief experience with free institutions during the past century. Japan has adopted a free constitution; its vast monopolies and cartels have been broken up; it has held an honest election; women have voted for the first time; the Emperor has accepted his new status with dignity and grace, and even in the Imperial household the girls are doing housework.

Free from the vast burden of armament, a new day may have dawned over that cherry-blossomed land. It may be that Japan, responding to just but magnanimous treatment by her conqueror will become a firm friend of America.
Certainly the medals won by the Nisei regiment which served the American cause in Italy will not be forgotten by a generous people.
It will be an offset against the dark

CHURCH WEDDING IS EVENT OF SATURDAY

Miss Dorothea Kentzler and Mr. Herman Pluma Are United in Marriage

SHORE HONEYMOON

CROYDON, Aug. 26.—A late summer wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's Lutheran Church at the hour of four on Saturday, when Miss Dorothea Kentzler and Mr.
Herman Pluma were united in marriage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Kentzler, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pluma, Sr. The double ring ceremony was used. The Rev.
Theodore Kohlmeier, pastor of the church, officiated.

Vases of flowers decorated the altar, with two large baskets of white gladioli placed on the floor at either side.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father as the wedding march was played by Mr. Adolph Kornfelt, organist. Mr. Kornfelt was also accompanist for Mrs. Otto Grupp, Jr., Eddington, whose two vocal selections were "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

The bride was attended by her five sisters, Mrs. Viggo Hilland, Bar Harbor, Me., matron of honor; Miss Ellen Kentzler, maid of honor; Miss Ruth Kentzler, Mrs. Harry Davis, Jr., Croydon, and Mrs. Edward Feehan, Bristol, bridesmaids. Mr.
Raymond Pluma, Bristol, was best man for his brother, Ushers were Messrs. William Dea, Edward Feehan, Howard Bennett, and William Cummings, all of Bristol.

The former Miss Kentzler was attired in a gown of white mousseline de soie, featuring full bishop sleeves with a deep circular flounce edging the tight wrist band. A ruffled flounce also edged the V-neckline.
The well-fitted midriff which buttoned in the center front was designed to give the appearance of a regulate. A tapered, ruffled flounce edged the skirt as it separated below the midriff, showing the deft shirring and center front fullness of the white jersey gown beneath.
This flounce continued around the entire long billowing train. Her sandals were of white kidskin. The bride's fingertip veil of imported French illusion flowed in two tiers from a crown wreath of tiny white orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. A shower of baby breath fell from the Bible carried by the bride which supported her corsage of white orchids.

The matron of honor and the of silver turquoise brocade satin.
Maid of honor were attired in gowns Keyhole necklines and cap sleeves

NEW DEAL GAMBLER

The New Dealers have put so much stress on the word "planning" that the American people tend to lose sight of the fact that most of the programs have been pure gambles.

"We planned it that way!" was the boast of the New Deal braintrust on one memorable occasion—back in 1937, when a brief spurt of industrial activity made it appear that the national budget was about to be balanced and the country emerge from the prolonged depression.

But when the bubble burst, under a new rash of "pumppriming," the boasting stopped. The budget went further and further out of line, the debt continued to soar, and the economic muddling continued. Not so much then was said about this particular part of the program being "planned that way."

All the essential steps of the New Deal were out-and-out gamblers. The late President Roosevelt gambled that taking the country off the gold standard would stabilize our economy and end the depression. He proceeded with this step even though it meant an outright repudiation of his own and his party's pre-lection pledges.

The gamble failed and the public held the bag.
The President gambled also in the matter of buying gold.
Upwards of $20 billion of the American public's assets went into the speculative buying of the precious metal in all parts of the world. Gold-hoarding nations, and especially those who had war in mind, were quick to take advantage of the high cash prices we offered. We got the gold (use for which has never been found) and they got the money with which to build up the military machines we later had to lick.

The costly fiasco is one of those matters which probably will never receive the ridicule it deserves until future generations write about it.

President Roosevelt made two other historic gambles which still haunt this nation, and will continue to do so for years to come.

In 1944, determined to bid for a precedent-shattering Fourth Term, he gambled that the American people would "stand for" a White House alliance with a nation-wide political machine built on the wreckage of the rights and independence of members of the CIO unions.

He bargained with the late Sidney Hillman, who traded the campaign contributions and votes of millions of supposedly free Americans in return for the right to "clear" the selection

ST. ANN'S WINS FIRST, DEFEATING EDGELY

Keegan Tosses "Saints" To Victory, and Wins,
3 to 2

AN INTERESTING GAME

A record crowd saw St. Ann's win out over Edgely in the ninth inning yesterday by the score of 3 to 2, to win the first half of the playoffs. Both teams kept the fans on the edge of their seats. Keegan tossed for the Saints and was at top form, holding DeKoy's men to five hits. Linck pitched for Edgely, allowing 12 hits, although he pitched a good game. Edgely took the lead in the third inning when they scored their two runs. Keegan walked the first batter (Linck), Doster came through with a single to right field, Frankie Purcell drove a single to left scoring Linck, then Hunter laid down a beautiful bunt to sacrifice Doster home, but from then on it was mostly St. Ann's.

In the last half of the fourth, Ciabella singled to left field, Freddie
came through with a single to left, scoring Ciabella. In the sixth frame Ciabella got his number two hit to left field, Freddie Barbetta got his number two to center and again Ludwig came through when he hit a hard grounder to second base, the ball taking a high bounce and hitting Dick on the head, while Ciabella was crossing the plate for the tying run. The Saints came into bat in the last half of the ninth and the fireworks started when Keegan drove a single to right field; "Tab-bit" Falumbo then hit a fly ball to right field for two bases, Keegan pulling up at third; then Linck walked Mari to load the bases. Pica then laid down a bunt to sacrifice Keegan home with the winning run.
There was one out when the winning run was scored.

THE END

Those who find the atomic bomb and its associated threats creeping at unpredictable intervals back of their minds into the front part, where they can not be ignored, now have still another matter to worry over. The sun may get so hot humanity will be fried, or it may get so cold that people will be frozen into a solid mass. These unhappy thoughts are advanced by Dr. Robert R.
Coles of New York's Hayden Planetarium, in a gloomy article in Sky and Telescope, published at the Harvard observatory.

At any time, tomorrow or in 50 or 100 million years, the sun may unaccountably flare up, Dr.
Coles writes, and the entire world would become too hot for anybody or thing to live. Other stars do this occasionally and Dr. Coles sees no reason why the sun should go on behaving normally indefinitely. If not this, then the sun might run out of the subatomic forces believed to be the source of its energy, whereupon the sun and earth would become cold places of frigid death.

But this fearful scientist points out that these calamities may not happen soon, perhaps not for a few thousands of millions of years, thank goodness. But all the same, considering that man may be able to do himself in nicely with the atomic bomb regardless of what the sun decides to do, it would seem a good time to get one's taxes paid up, the best suit pressed and all credentials in good order. This is no time to be caught in one's underwear, with unanswered letters from the Internal Revenue department lying about.

SUPERIOR HOAX

Autumn Van Den Heuvel is unhappy, and perhaps he has reason to be. Mr. Van Den Heuvel is the Clarkstown, N. Y., farmer who was reported willing to give the ripe produce of his five farms to anybody who would come and get it because he couldn't get enough labor to harvest it.

"Anybody" came by the thousands. They came from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. They included a carload of gypsies from Florida. They included 300 soldiers from West Point who wanted a few trimmings for their mess.

The only trouble was, according to Mr. Van Den Heuvel, that he had nothing to give away and never said he had. The whole thing, he said, was a hoax. He said he had no idea how it got started. He expressed the fervent wish that it never had.

If the whole thing was a hoax —both on Mr. Van Den Heuvel and "anybody"—it was one of the more successful hoaxes. The original story got plenty of circulation in newspapers. And it got plenty of results.

The thing might be regarded as demonstrating the power of publicity. How it got started if, as Mr. Van Den Heuvel insists, he didn't make the crack, is a mystery.

"Every day will be Sunday bye-and-bye," according to an old song. But not in towns that have parking meters.

for Vice-President and have the inside track thereafter at the White House.

This was a three-way bargain; the third party to it was composed of a string of corrupt Democratic machines in various industrial centers.

As a matter of public morality, this deal was the most appalling since the days when Aaron Burr set out to horse-trade his way into the Presidency by swapping patronage for political support.

The entire transaction was a gamble. Its makers hoped to bully or buy enough support from those who might otherwise have opposed the Fourth Term to re-elect the President.

The major risk was that the American people would repudiate such methods; that they would recognize tyranny, even in the labor movement; that the picture of "free" Americans being ordered where and how much to give in campaign contributions, and told how to vote, on the perfectly obvious threat of losing their jobs, would be too nauseous for the independent American mind.

But the public was dazed by the war emergencies, and hypothesized by the idea of "giving labor a voice in government."

At the time, this gamble won; yet in the long run it already has lost, for the labor history of the last few months most clearly shows that the inevitable effect of such factional domi-ance of the national government must be industrial chaos, social upheaval, and the ruin of the country through bankruptcy, inflation or revolution.

The fourth, and sometimes called "Great," gamble of President Roosevelt was in the field of peace.

Against the advice of many, apparently contrary to the wishes of Winston Churchill, and certainly contrary to the evidence of the entire history of the Russian nation, he gambled on the "good intentions" of Stalin.

With no commitments as to Russia's post-war policy, he poured men, money and munitions into the job of rescuing the Red Army from the Nazi stranglehold; he refused the Churchill pledge to hit Germany through the "soft under-belly" of the Mediterranean (so as to strike between Germany and Russia, and thus, with the British, be the forces which would occupy this portion of Europe); and he conceded a string of special authorities to Russia, including the veto power which has largely wrecked the United Nations program—on the strength of which Russia now is bidding for the right to rule the world.

President Roosevelt gambled that Russia would "play ball" for peace. He lost. In losing, he lost most of the world's chances to escape a third World War.

Most accurately it can be said that if the Roosevelt policies won the war, they lost the peace.

It is this gambling instinct, this willingness to "take a chance" with the welfare and future of the public, which is back of the philosophy of the present national administration, as well as behind the Democratic candidates in the Pennsylvania election.

Does the average man or woman of this State want to place the Commonwealth's future in the hands of opportunists, chance-takers, improvident runners-of-risks—or do the voters of the state understand the full political significance of the famous old catch-phrase:

"Gamblers die broke!"

record of Japanese commanders and soldiers in the Far East.

"The grass soon grows over the blood of a battlefield, but never over the blood of the scaffold." We have had an American policy in Japan; a hedge-podge in Europe.

American reconstruction in Japan still faces many difficulties. Inflation and shortage of food have still to be surmounted. But a good start has been made.

MacArthur, who doubt has his faults—what general does not?— but to my way of thinking his short address on the battleship Missouri, when the war-lords surrendered, is the only statement made by any world figure which is worthy to be found in the same library with Lincoln's Second Inaugural—"bind up the wounds of war, care for him who has borne the heat of battle, his widow and orphans, and achieve and cherish just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations." Lincoln's assassination may have been fortunate for his fame, but it was bad for America.

"Let us have peace."

MacArthur's anniversary message is worth summarizing: "The most significant lesson to Americans on this anniversary of victory is the spiritual force which has covered American life and controlled American destiny since the birth of our republic. . . . History records the invincible power, which free men as individuals, but yet as one, have developed in the American way. . . . At war's end, as we rested on our arms, we sought to chart a secure future course through the labyrinth of human spiritual and material wreckage. It behoves us now to scrupulously cling to this ideal, so long rooted in American traditions. There is, however, a note of warning in contemporary events which must not be ignored. This great concept is now hardly less challenged in peace than it was in war. A great issue today stirs mankind involving the clash of the two conflicting ideologies—the struggle for moral and intellectual supremacy between two opposing concepts governing man's position upon the earth—whether he shall enjoy the maximum of individual freedom or whether he shall be subjected to human regimentation."

Wedding at Andalusia
Attracts on Saturday

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 26—A wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), when Miss Alberta M. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Buttonwood avenue, became the bride of Mr. Robert G. Hess, of Philadelphia.

The bride was given in marriage by her father at a double ring ceremony, the Rev. Ronald W. Wiley officiating.

Miss Helen Jones, of Bustleton, maid of honor, wore a gown of blue printed marquisette, cut on princess lines with shoulder length veil. She carried an arm bouquet of pink asters and white roses. The bridesmaid was Mrs. James Hall. Her gown was of pink, styled like that of the matron of honor. She carried an arm bouquet of blue asters and white roses. The flower girl, Miss Winifred Roberts, was attired in blue net over pink satin, and she carried a basket of mixed flowers.

Mr. Edward Hess, Philadelphia, acted as best man for his brother.
The ushers were Mr. John Garis, Philadelphia, and Mr. William Davis, brother of the bride.

The bride's gown was of white satin, cut on princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves. She had a long train edged with lace and a finger-tip veil caught with white rose buds. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

The bride's mother chose a grey street-length dress, with hat to match, and wore a corsage of red and white roses. The groom's mother selected a street-length dress of old rose, black accessories, and wore pink and white roses.

A reception was held at King Hall, places being arranged for 100 guests.

Miss Dorothy Wenner presided at the organ, and Mrs. Willis Loring sang "Because," "At Dawning" and "Perfect Love."

The church was decorated with cut flowers and palms.

wards finished first and Byron Shannon second, and Henny Shake-shaft third. The time for this heat was four minutes 11.9 seconds.

In the final featured event, which was the Class 2 race, there was plenty of excitement with all of them trying hard for first place.
Dean Worcester was in seventh place and came up to fourth, which is where he finished. Walter Doe Edwards finished first and Byron Shannon second, with Ray Shilling finishing third. The time for this race was five minutes 00.5 seconds.

In the time trials, Jim Baden had some bad luck. His boat got out of control on the turn and hit the bank which put him out of the race for the day as his boat was damaged badly.

As a special feature, three Class B boats had a race of six laps. It finished in a dead heat. One of the three developed motor trouble and did not finish. The two finished across the line together. They were Dean Worcester, and Robert Dutch Sollday. The third one who was in the race was John Zack.

Californian is Wed to Resident of Bath Road

Attended by two bridesmaids and a flower girl, a resident of Alameda, Cal., Miss Edna Healey, was wed on Saturday afternoon to Mr. John W. Biggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Biggs, Orchard avenue, Bath Addition. The two o'clock ceremony in Bristol Presbyterian Church was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans.

The bridesmaids were Miss Edith Smith, Buckley street, and Mrs. John Younger, Bristol Terrace II.; with little Linda Hart, Orchard avenue, as flower girl. Serving Mr. Biggs as best man was his brother, Mr. Thomas Biggs, Bath Addition; the ushers being Mr. Earl Barrow, Upper Darby, and Mr. Robert Vandervleet, Edgely.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. Lauren Healey, of Alameda, was escorted to the altar by Mr. John Younger, as the notes of a bridal march were played by organist Miss Hilda MacArthur, of Edgely. Miss MacArthur also accompanied Mrs. Ralph Hart, Orchard avenue, who sang "Because," "O Promise Me," and "Always."

The full-trained white net bridal gown featured small taffeta bows over the skirt and train. The bridal veil of net was held by a Juliet cap of velvet and pearls; and the bride carried white roses supported by a white prayer book.

Miss Smith and Mrs. Younger were attired in similar models of white dotted Swiss, the floor-length gowns having ruffles around the neckline, and sleeves being short. Each wore a wreath of flowers on her hair, from which were suspended matching veils. Miss Smith's headpiece was of aqua, and Mrs. Younger's was pink. Their slippers were white, and they carried colonial bouquets of mixed shades of asters. Little Linda Hart wore a dress of white net, yellow flowers in her hair; and carried a nose-gay similar to those of the bridesmaids.

Choice of Mrs. Biggs, the groom's mother, for the occasion was a lime and black dress, black accessories, and a corsage of fuchsia tone gladioli.

Guests were invited to a reception at the Biggs residence following the wedding. The bride and groom

SHOULD WE CONTINUE?

We've got a problem, and we want you to help us solve it.

It is this: For approximately the last five months we've been closing Monday and Saturday evenings. We made this move at a time when our sales force was greatly understaffed, and we felt that their loyalty and perseverance should be rewarded by giving them off Monday and Saturday evenings.

Today the picture is brighter. And we've been wondering whether you, our customers, would be better satisfied if we again were open on Monday and Saturday evenings.

And for your efforts we're going to reward each of the first 100 persons who write down their opinions and mail or bring them to our store with a beautiful casserole, absolutely free.

Should we, or should we not continue with our present policy of closing Monday and Saturday evenings?

DANIELS TO MEET NAMEE IN BOUT AT ST. ANN'S TONIGHT

Show to be Benefit Performance For the St. Ann's Football Team

Lowry to Meet Barnes in Six-Round Semi-Windup

Pancho Namee, the traveling Panamanian, will again appear in the windup of the St. Ann's boxing show tonight when he meets Matt C. Daniels, of Trenton, in an eight-round bout.

The show will be conducted as a benefit performance for the St. Ann's A. A. football team which is reorganizing after a lapse of five years. Members of the football team have been selling tickets for the bouts for the past week.

Namee has fought here twice and each time was one end of a thrilling bout. He fought Larry Gibson, of Trenton, in a six-round semi-windup and after being floored in the second came back strong to earn a draw.

So great was the applause after this bout that Promoter Moffo immediately re-signed the boys for an encore. The result was that Namee beat the Jersey lad although the decision was very close.

Now, a stable-mate of Gibson, Matt Daniels, is seeking revenge for Gibson. Daniels is in the same class as Gibson but is faster. Where Gibson packed a murderous punch in his right hand, Daniels is the type that can hit and get away. Namee uses the same style and it remains to be seen who can get in the most number of blows.

But on the other hand, Namee is predicting a knockout. "I am anxious to show the Bristol fight fans that as well as being a boxer, I can also slug and am certain that I can put Daniels to sleep."

In the six-round semi-windup, Frank Lowry, popular fistic thrower of this vicinity, fights Ken Barnes, of Chicago. Lowry won his only match here several weeks ago and is anxious to get back into the stride he had when fighting as an amateur. A war injury to his leg does not handicap Lowry and he feels that if he can take over the visiting Chicagoan, he will again be ready to step into big-time battles.

Barnes has come east with the idea of adding more victories to his growing list so that when he returns to Chicago, he will ask for fights in larger boxing circles.

"Chuck" Kuper, who is classed as a coming champion, by his Philadelphia followers, is matched with "Charlie" Hilton, of Philadelphia. In the other six-round bout, Kuper was the leader of the Camp Lee boxing team which compiled a long list of wins with other army camp teams.

"Jimmy" Guye, an 180-pounder, will appear in one of the four-round preliminaries, while in the other four-round, a Bristol boy will be one of the participants.

General admission tickets will go on sale at seven o'clock at the ticket office while reserve seats can still be secured by phoning the St. Ann's A. A. clubhouse or the Diamond Sporting Goods store, Mill street.

Many a big deal has been made possible through a small want ad.

YOUTH LEAGUE TO RUN PLAYOFFS HERE

The final playoffs of the Bristol Youth League will get under way this evening with the Bristol Township nine meeting Croydon A. C. on Leedom's field. Game will begin at six o'clock sharp.

"Inks" Schneider will do the hill work for the Township lads while either Foster Marsh or Dick Sperling will do the tossing for the Croydon boys.

The Township team entered the final playoffs by beating Third Ward in a series which was extended to three games. The township lads beat the Warders, 8-7, in the final game after splitting the first two.

Croydon beat West Bristol in two straight games in its series, after having finished second during the regular season.

The Township team is managed by "Henny" Morrell, while Rene Tritschler, one-time Bristol Twilight League player, manages the Croydon lads.

Officials of the Bristol Suburban League will umpire the tilt while an official scorer of the Suburban circuit will keep score.

Cornwells Wins Over Calvary Team

A "squeeze" punt by Charlie Poston with the bases full, one out and the score tied at 6-6 gave Cornwells a 7-6 win over Calvary on the Bensalem High School field Saturday afternoon, and thereby enabled Cornwells to pull up to a flat tie with Eddington-Newportville for first place in the Lower Bucks Church Softball League. Both have a record of five victories and one defeat. The setback also definitely eliminated Calvary from any possibility of capturing the second half title since this marked their third defeat with only one more game to play.

The two clubs battled "tooth-and-nail" right down to the finish in an up-and-down game that provided many exciting moments for the followers of the teams.

The League will close its season with the final games scheduled for tonight when Calvary meets Eddington-Newportville and Cornwells tangles with Bensalem. Should both Eddington and Cornwells win, the league would end in a two-way tie with the two clubs finishing with a 6-1 record. Should both Eddington and Cornwells lose, then they would finish in a three-way tie with the Church of Our Saviour, each having a 5-2 record. But should one win and one lose, the winning team would capture the title undisputedly.
